Another essential has already been suitably added to Scottsdale's advantages. That's the attractive Paradise Chapel and Funeral Home that has formally opened at 40th Street and Indian School Road. The Home's president and owner is a young airline pilot, Francis Ackerman. Frank was with the Air Transport Command during the war, and has been (still is) a captain with Bonanza Air Lines for four years now. It may have been the successful funeral home that Frank's uncle has operated for some years in Mount Pleasant, Pa., that inspired the building of Paradise Chapel. Or it may have been Frank's preference for the seven years of funeral experience that he himself has had in various mortuaries, that led to the project. Anyway, we're glad the chapel is here, so close by.
